Objective: Identify potential barriers and motivators to cervical cancer screening among Japanese women living in the U.S.

They are the only meds capable of relieving the pain enough to endure until they resolve.