these drugs may be appropriate for use in older teenagers but have not been approved for use in younger children, and there is some evidence that they are inappropriate for infants.

it’s called kalydeco (trade name for ivacaftor), and it’s being heralded as a ‘miracle drug’ by cystic fibrosis patients who have experienced its life-changing effects.