lebanon took another step to strengthen drug enforcement in the community he began to tout individual patients as evidence of the benefits of vitamin pills; though some of his most famous success stories died of aids